Creating substantial value from sustainable practice

SUBSCRIPTION

matX is a software platform based on circular economic principles

Our goal is to reposition resource REUSE and RECYCLING from opportunistic and ad hoc to intentional and business as usual.

matX offers a new way to connect within projects and with different projects

The construction and demolition sector consists of multi-disciplinary, multi-business and mobile teams that are continually forming, and disbanding depending on project needs. This complexity is in addition to Australia's ~15% p.a. employee turnover.

matX's marketplaces and subscription evolve with your business and project needs matX helps you build resilient networks that are robust and flexible. These networks can accommodate the movement of people and changing business requirements while maintaining:

- ✘ data
- ✘ team connectivity, and
- ✘ Momentum.

Smarter subscription

matX is subscription-based platform because this approach:

- ✘ enables transparent and direct transactions between businesses
- ✘ supports maximum commercial benefit for business when salvaging costs or selling for profit
- ✘ encourages all transactions from massive quantities sold in lots to a single small item
- ✘ fully supports the free issue or donation of resources, and
- ✘ works with the way businesses want to work.

A matX subscription buys seats

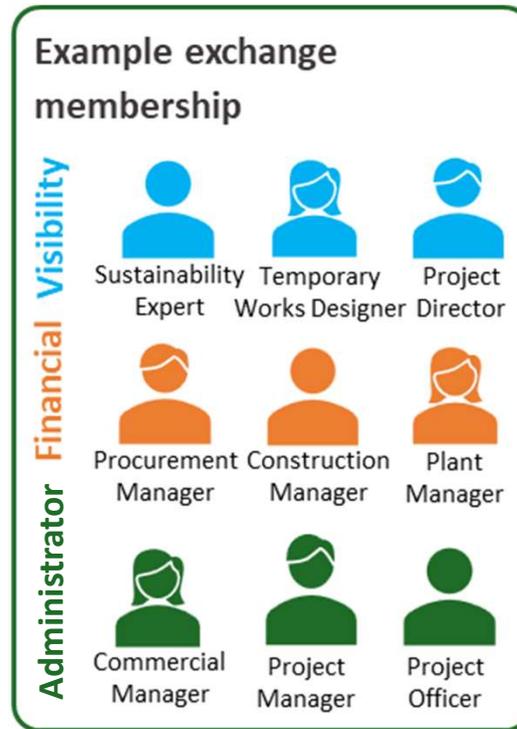

You choose how you use them.

- ✘ One seat gives the user access to join or create one or many marketplaces
- ✘ Invite anyone to join matX regardless of whether they are internal or external to your business
- ✘ Seats can be easily removed and reassigned
- ✘ Invite interested parties such as suppliers and sub-contractors on a short-term basis. Users can seamlessly jump from one subscription account to another.

This flexibility helps build and maintain resilient networks

How it works

Alliance A starts with 100 matX seats and creates “AA” marketplace to connect its project teams.

matX helps people to set up their accounts. These marketplace members grow their network by invite others, including temporary works designers, subcontractors and suppliers. matX provides training and support for new people as needed.

All new marketplace members have visibility permission so they can see who else is in the marketplace, what is listed on the marketplace and the transaction data.

The “AA” marketplace administrators oversee membership and member permission levels. They give some people financial permission so they can buy and sell on behalf of Alliance A.

Alliance A decides to extend their market reach by collaborating with parent companies and other strategic partners. They create as new marketplaces as needed.

Alliance A use their marketplace dashboards, transaction data and user feedback to evidence matX is saving them cost, time and effort.
